CIA Representation on Intordepartmental Petroleum Committee

- 1. I am of the opinion that Central Intelligence Agency would derive substantial benefit from representation on the Interdepartmental Petroleum Committee. It would facilitate OsB's keeping in close touch with our Covernment's top level oil policies and operations and enable us to arrive at more realistic estimates of the petroleum situation in foreign countries.
- 2. Moreover, membership on the Interdepartmental Petroleum Committee should serve as a guide to ONE as to the Production of intelligence considered useful by that Committee and provide us with an opportunity to make special foreign oil studies having a significent bearing on the national security.
- 3. Mombers of the Interdepartmental Petrolaum Committee for the National Security Resources Scard, Army, Navy, Air Forces, State, etc., west observe the security regulations of their respective agencies while taking part in the work of the Committee. Our member would be expected to conduct hisself with equal discretion.
- he In general, ORE personnel have in the past confined their participation in interagency committee work to those groups concerned primarily with intelligence activities. In this instance, however, I feel that the broader perspective of the Interdepartmental Petroleum Committee would be very helpful to our Petroleum Specialist in the discharge of his duties.
